To whom it may concern:

It's my pleasure to write a letter of recommendation for Randall Eaton, Ph.D. I first heard of his reputation as an exceptional teacher at Old College at Reno through one of his students, my oldest son. Since then, I've become acquainted with him by enrolling as a student in his class, through hearing him speak at community lectures and when he was guest speaker at a business luncheon I coordinated.

I'm a human resource development specialist for the State of Nevada. As part of my profession I attend conferences, seminars and meetings. So, I'm in a position to hear a variety of speakers and educators.

One of the reasons I admire and respect Dr. Eaton's professional ability is his talent for breathing life into the subjects for his audience. He has a rare skill in being able to project imagery through his words. When I described to other students how I was consistently seeing elaborate visualizations of what he was describing and discussing, they agreed that they also receive his communication both auditorially and visually.

In the short period of time that he's been in northern Nevada he has brought to our area nationally recognized speakers through a series of free lectures, he's received ample newspaper coverage for his efforts in establishing a wildlife refuge and helped earn credibility for a brand-new school, Old College at Reno.

He's a brilliant teacher, a sensitive and caring individual and will infinitely contribute to any college/university and community in which he chooses to work and live.

Please feel free to contact me if you'd like more information.

Sincerely,
